

FREE CHAPTER

CHAPTER ONE PREVIEW OF

THE EXECUTION PLAYBOOK: FROM VISION TO RESULTS

A PROVEN EXECUTION SYSTEM FOR TURNING
IDEAS INTO MEASURABLE OUTCOMES

A.S YUNUSA

Managing Director, Mcdream Concepts Ltd

A PERSONAL NOTE FROM ME TO YOU

Before you read a single word of this chapter, I want to speak to you directly. I am not speaking to you as the author or as a Managing Director or a professional with titles and credentials, I am speaking to you as someone who has sat exactly where you are sitting right now.

Capable, Committed, working hard and quietly frustrated that the results were not matching the effort.

I spent years delivering complex projects and results in leadership, construction, real estate and organizational environment facing high pressure, real deadlines, real consequences and I watched talented, intelligent people around me and sometimes myself, fall short not because of a lack of skill or dedication, but because of something nobody ever addressed directly.

We had no reliable system for execution.

We planned well, we communicated the vision, we motivated our teams but somewhere between the decision and the delivered result, things broke down every time and in the same places. That pattern troubled me deeply.

So, I stopped accepting it and started studying it.

I asked one question obsessively:

What exactly separates the professionals who consistently deliver from those who consistently almost deliver?

The answer was not found in talent or connections not even in experience but a system and once I understood that, I built one.

I called it the Yunusa Model of Strategic Execution, the Y-MSE.

I tested it, refined it and applied it across teams, projects, and organisations under real conditions. Then I wrote this book because I believed that what helped me could help you.

The Execution Playbook is not a motivational read. You will find no empty encouragement here, no borrowed theories dressed up in new language.

What you will find is a working system. Practical, structured and built for the real world not the ideal one.

The chapter you are about to read is the foundation of everything that follows.

Read it carefully. Not passively.

Ask yourself honestly: Does this describe where I am right now?

If the answer is yes, the full book was written for you.

I am honoured you are here.

Now let us get to work.

-Aliyu Shaibu Yunusa (A. S. Yunusa)

Author, The Execution Playbook: From Vision to Results.

Managing Director, McDream Concepts Limited

www.executionpb.com

CHAPTER ONE

WHY CAPABLE PEOPLE STILL FAIL TO EXECUTE

One of the biggest misconceptions about execution is this: People believe that when results are not achieved, the problem must be laziness, lack of motivation, or poor discipline. This assumption is common, but it is often wrong.

In reality, many capable, intelligent, hardworking people struggle to produce consistent results.

They work long hours, make plans, attend trainings etc. They set goals at the beginning of the year yet progress remains slow, inconsistent, or completely absent.

The problem is not always effort. it is usually due to lack of clarity.

Execution rarely fails because people are incapable. It fails because thinking is unclear.

The Hidden Problem Behind Execution Failure

Many people begin execution without first answering the most important questions.

What exactly must be achieved?

What does success actually look like?

What resources are required?

What obstacles should be anticipated?

What level of effort will this demand?

When these questions are not answered clearly, people begin acting without direction.

They become busy, but not productive. They become active, but not effective. They start many things, but complete very few.

From the outside, it may look like they lack discipline. But in reality, they lack execution clarity.

How Capable People Fail

Capable people fail to execute when several silent problems appear at the thinking level. These problems are often invisible at first, but they slowly weaken execution.

1. Goals Are Vague

Many people set goals that sound impressive but are not operational or SMART

2. Priorities Compete

Another common execution problem is priority conflict. People attempt to pursue too many objectives at the same time.

3. Capacity Is Ignored

Ambition is powerful. But ambition must be supported by capacity.

4. Progress Is Measured by Feelings Instead of Evidence

Another major cause of execution failure is emotional measurement.

People often evaluate progress based on how they feel. If they feel busy, they assume progress is being made. If they feel motivated, they assume execution is improving. If they feel tired, they assume they have worked hard enough.

But execution is not measured by feelings. It is measured by evidence.

The Chain Reaction of Unclear Thinking

When clarity is absent, a predictable pattern begins to appear.

First, direction becomes uncertain.

When direction is uncertain, effort becomes scattered. When effort becomes scattered, results become inconsistent. When results become inconsistent, motivation begins to collapse.

At this stage, people often blame themselves.

They believe they lack discipline. They assume they are not working hard enough. But the real issue is usually because they started executing before thinking clearly.

The Turning Point is precise thinking

Execution begins to improve the moment thinking becomes precise.

Clarity forces decisions. Clarity defines priorities. Clarity exposes unrealistic expectations. Clarity aligns effort with outcomes. When thinking becomes clear, action becomes structured. Then, they will know what must be done. They will know what to ignore. They will know how progress will be measured.

This is why the first stage of disciplined execution is not action but clarity. Once thinking becomes precise, execution begins to gain direction. And when direction becomes clear, effort finally begins to produce results.

In conclusion, Capable people do not fail because they cannot work. They fail because they begin working before their thinking becomes clear.

Execution improves the moment clarity replaces assumption.

Because in every field either engineering, business, leadership, or personal growth, precision in thinking always produces power in execution.

WHAT IS WAITING FOR YOU IN THE FULL BOOK

You have just finished Chapter One.

You now understand why execution fails and why it is never about effort But this is only the beginning.

Here is what the full Execution Playbook reveals next:

CHAPTER TWO — Starting With the Goal

Most people think they know what they want. Few have tested whether what they want is actually the right place to begin. This chapter challenges the way you define goals and shows you why the starting point matters more than the destination.

CHAPTER THREE — Form Your Vision From Your Goals

A goal tells you what you want to achieve. It does not tell you who you must become to achieve it. This is where vision enters and where most professionals get it completely wrong. This chapter shows you how to build a vision that is not borrowed from a motivational speaker but forged from your own goals.

CHAPTER FOUR — Goal Refinement and Execution Focus

Writing a goal is not the same as preparing it for execution. Most goals die not because people stop working on them but because the goal was never execution-ready to begin with. This chapter gives you the exact process to refine your goals until they are sharp enough to execute.

CHAPTER FIVE — Defining Success Metrics to Support Your Goal

How will you know if you are making progress? Most professionals measure progress by feelings and feelings mostly lie. This chapter shifts you permanently from emotion-based tracking to evidence-based execution. You will never guess your progress again.

And that is just the first five chapters.

The full Execution Playbook contains the complete Y-MSE framework and seventeen chapters that takes you from where you are to where your results should be.

Your next step is simple.

👉 Get the full book at www.executionpb.com

Hardcopy and digital available on Selar and Amazon.

"Most professionals have the vision. Few have the system. This book closes that gap."

About the Author

A. S. Yunusa is the Managing Director of McDream Concepts Limited, a property development and investment firm based in Abuja, Nigeria. A civil engineer, project manager, and business leader, he has spent his career at the intersection of execution, capital and leadership with experience in delivering complex projects in construction, real estate, and organisational environments.

He is the author of these three books; The Execution Playbook: From Vision to Results, Investment & Property Development, and Buy Smart in Nigeria, making him one of Nigeria's most prolific voices on execution strategy and the built environment.

Through his work, his writing, and his engagements with CEO-level forums and professional bodies, He developed the Y-MSE framework to solve a recurring problem: capable people working hard without a reliable execution system.

His focus is in helping leaders and organisations move from intention to measurable results as part of his mission which is to;

“To bridge the gap between policy, investment and execution in Africa’s built environment by developing the professionals, entrepreneurs, and leaders who will turn the continent’s ambitions into lasting reality.”